AMERICAN AND FRENCH ACCOUNTS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

Who shall write the history of the American Revolution?" John Adams once asked. "Who can write it?" "Who will ever be able to write it?" Adams, however, had overlooked one important area. Materials were available for writing the military side of the struggle for independence. There existed many accounts, both primary and secondary, by the two prime protagonists in the war—the Americans and their French allies. This series is devoted to reprinting a selection of such works.

Books within the first category—personal accounts by officers and men who fought in the Continental army—were quite numerous in the historical literature. Although the age of universal public education in this country lay in the future, a surprising number of soldiers could read and write—a fact to which signatures on muster rolls can attest. Conscious that they were involved in an epoch-making event, many men kept a diary or journal in their knapsacks or wrote long letters home. These firsthand records made it possible to visualize the agonies of marching and fighting battles through the eyes of those who endured them. Equally important, these individual accounts often were more revealing than the official records. Such was the case in two of the works in this series—Caleb Stark's, Memoir and Official Correspondence of General John Stark, with Notices of Several Other Officers of the Revolution, and Egbert Benson's, Vindication of the Captors of Major Andre.

A second primary source of utmost importance were army orderly books. The official purpose of these journals was to record the orders given by military commanders, the movement of units, and the disposition of forces during battle. Numerous other details of daily army life were also incorporated, such as the rations issued, sanitary measures taken, and the courts-martial conducted. By analyzing their contents carefully, however, one could read between the lines certain attitudes about which nothing had been written—the relations between officers and men, morale of troops, and reactions to recent military developments. From the book of general orders issued by Israel Putnam in the Hudson Highlands during the summer and fall of 1777, for example, one catches the shiver of apprehension that ran through his men as the invasion by General John Burgoyne from Canada got under way.

Among the secondary sources in this series, biographies rank high. The Revolutionary War produced not only a new nation but a host of heroes. From the study of the personal lives of participants, one can gain new insights regarding the struggle for independence. Elbridge H. Goss' two-volume work, The Life of Colonel Paul Revere, reveals that the Boston silversmith was a major figure in Massachusetts along with John Hancock and Sam Adams well before he took his famous midnight ride. Hancock himself is portrayed as a master organizer as well as a colorful political leader in Lorenzo Sears' biography, John Hancock, the Picturesque Patriot. George Rogers Clark, a controversial figure in American history has alternately been described as the heroic conqueror of the West and as a guerilla fighter with dubious motives. Clark's contributions as well as his motives are examined in the careful book by Consul W. Butterfield. One of the European military experts who served the American cause in a unique way was Thaddeus Kosciuszko, the Polish patriot, artilleryman, and engineer. His career, studied by Mieczislaus Haiman—a scholar with a command of the Polish language—provides information that is not generally known.

The last category in the American secondary sources reprinted in this series represents certain books that have been out-of-print. Although it is an older work, Sydney G. Fisher's The True History of the American Revolution is still regarded as indispensable by many scholars because of its treatment of the Loyalists as well as its emphasis on the internal social divisions within the country during the conflict. Paul Allen's A History of the American Revolution is of interest because it reflects the attitude toward the Revolution by the generation that fought the so-called "second war for independence"—the War of 1812. The volume by Simon Wolfe, The Jew as Patriot, Soldier, and Citizen, is distinctly different; it stresses, among other things, the contribution of Jews to the revolutionary movement in America. Finally, Clarence Bennett's Advance and Retreat to Saratoga goes well beyond the limits indicated in its title; it describes the military actions in the Northern theater of operations from Arnold's ill-fated expedition to Quebec in 1775 to the equally disastrous British invasion by Burgoyne in 1777.

Although French military aid is generally conceded to have made America's independence possible, literary accounts of France's involvement in the war have been relatively few in number. For this reason, three works in this series deal with the subject directly or indirectly. Thomas Balch's book, The French in America During the War of Independence of the United States, makes a strong case for the traditional position that France's contribution to the American cause made the difference between victory and defeat. William M. Sloane in The French War and the Revolution, on the other hand, concludes that the foreign alliance was a mistake and that America might have been better advised to gain her independence by herself. Abbe Raynal, the French writer and historian, examines the question from another point of view in The Revolution of America. He contends that the Revolution had a great impact upon European intellectuals, and that America provided a model for the Old World to follow in molding a new and better society.

One common theme runs through most of the volumes reprinted in this series; the participants—American and French—and the commentators—past and present—were agreed that the Revolution was a profound event whose effects were destined to shape the future of world history.

PREFACE

ISRAEL PUTNAM (1718-1790), or “old Put” as he was called, had earned a reputation as a military hero even prior to the Revolutionary War. He first saw action in the French and Indian War as a Connecticut militiaman, and gained great fame as an Indian fighter. When he entered the War of Independence, therefore, he already possessed considerable soldiering experience.

His exploits at the outbreak of hostilities added to his military fame. Serving in the battle of Bunker Hill as a brigadier general of the Connecticut troops, he covered himself with distinction by his determined stand. He was appointed as one of the four major generals in the Continental army shortly thereafter, and commanded the American center during the siege of Boston.

Putnam's subsequent career during the campaigns of 1776 diminished his growing prestige. At the beginning of the New York campaign, he was placed in over-all charge of the American fortifications in New York City until Washington arrived on the scene in April, 1776. During the battle of Long Island, he was in command of the forces that were decisively defeated by the British on August 27, 1776. Throughout the remainder of the New York campaign and Washington's withdrawal to the Delaware, however, he was given no important role. He was put in command of the forces around Philadelphia for a brief time toward the end of 1776. When the British withdrew after the American victories at Trenton and Princeton, Putnam was ordered to take over the American wing posted at Princeton during the early months of 1777.

Washington by this time had lost confidence in Putnam, and in May, 1777, ordered him to take charge of the forces in the Hudson Highlands. In his new post, Putnam often refused to obey Washington's preemptory orders, and was sharply rebuked by the commander-in-chief. The Hudson Highlands were a pivotal point, lying between Burgoyne's invading army coming down from Canada and the British forces stationed in New York City under General Henry Clinton. Putnam's mission was to deny the passes up the Hudson to the British. He was put to the test when General Clinton sent forth a relief expedition that moved north up the Hudson and took Forts Clinton and Montgomery on October 6. On October 9, after receiving an urgent appeal from Burgoyne, Clinton ordered his forces further up the Hudson to the town of Kingston. The British general felt too insecure to penetrate further north, however, and returned to New York City after setting fire to Kingston on October 16.

General Putnam's orders are of critical importance because they show what measures he had taken before and during Clinton's incursion into the Hudson Highlands. His dilatoriness and presumed incompetence of command led to a court of inquiry in 1778, in which these orders played an important part. But he was cleared of any "fault, misconduct, or negligence," when it was realized that there were mitigating circumstances such as a shortage of men.

The general orders included here shed light upon one of the military controversies of the Revolutionary War, and are drawn from two hitherto unpublished sources—the orderly books of Sergeant Daniel Ware and Major Richard Platt.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

Early in May, Washington, governed by his anxiety for the safety of the Highlands, and harassed by the uncertainty of the enemy's movements, wished to place a Major-General in command on the Hudson. Arnold was first appointed; but he was too much engaged in seeking a "vindication" from a slight passed upon him by Congress in some recent promotions. Putnam was then selected. On May 24th, Washington wrote to the President of Congress: "I have sent General Putnam to command in that quarter;" but the choice was determined upon some time before. For McDougall, who was in command at Peekskill, was informed of it as early as the 16th, and the wish expressed that he would find his command "a happy one." General Parsons, then superintending the recruiting in Connecticut, was also ordered to Peekskill, to remain there until further orders.

Exactly when Putnam assumed command, I have been unable to determine; but it must have been about June 1st, and on that day he issued an order constituting a court martial. The interest of the campaign of 1777 centered on the incursion from Canada under Burgoyne, and the Highlands were the pivotal point. I sought long before I found a copy of the General Orders issued by Putnam during the summer and fall of 1777, but was finally rewarded by discovering a mutilated record in the Connecticut Historical Society.

The entries began with that of July 19th, and in the regiment with which Sergeant Daniel Ware was connected, and ended when that regiment was ordered to join the main Continental army under Washington. After I had received a copy of Ware's book, further inquiries produced from the cabinet of the New York Historical Society a second record, kept by Major Richard Platt, of McDougall's brigade, more full and complete than the Connecticut Sergeant's, but still lacking some entries. Further interest is given to Platt's books by the fact that half of one volume is in McDougall's MS. This record also ceases in the fall, when Washington ordered the Brigade to join him in the Jerseys.

The following orders are, therefore, taken from two sources, and may be readily distinguished by the erratic spelling of Sergeant Ware. The entries to July 19th are taken from Platt; after that date Ware's record is taken as the basis, and where a word, name or phrase is inserted from Platt, it is printed in italics. Where the orders for a day, or a paragraph, is taken from Platt, it is not printed in italics, the spelling being sufficient to distinguish its authorship. I have inserted in [ ] the full names of the officers, where ascertainable; but the absence of any official roster of Massachusetts has made it impossible to be as complete as could be wished. Where Platt varies essentially from Ware, I have inserted the variation in ( ) and italics. The map is a copy, somewhat reduced in size, of one prepared by Claude Joseph Sauthier, in 1774, and published by William Faden.

In conclusion I wish to express my appreciation of the permissions granted me by the Historical Societies of Connecticut and New York, and of the courteous assistance given by the Secretaries, Mr. Frank B. Gay, of Hartford, and Mr. William Kelby, of New York. For the map I am indebted to Harvard University and its able librarian, Mr. Justin Winson. I am also indebted to Mr. Albert C. Bates, of Hartford, for his accurate and painstaking transcript of the Ware Orderly Book.

For ordering M<sup>r</sup> Smith doing the Duty of Major of Brigade for his Brigade not to turn parties out of it unless the Orders were directed to him (the Colonel) which is contrary to the usage of the army by which he has embarrassed the Service.

For delaying the Returns of his Regt<sup>t</sup> & Brigade by orders & whims of his own contrary to the known Rules of the Army & thereby delaying the Genl Returns of the Army in this Department.

For abusive Language to Genl McDougall at his own Quarters on 23<sup>d</sup> Instant, unbecoming an Officer and a Gentleman in the presence of many Officers of the Army.

Col<sup>o</sup> Henry B. Livingston being tried by the Genl Court Martial of which B. Genl George Clinton was President—

The Court after having duly considered the Proofs and Allegations of the parties specified in their Report, Returns & other papers offered in Evidence & the Written Defence of Col<sup>o</sup> Livingston therewith delivered, are of Opinion, that tho' the Conduct of Brigadier Genl McDougall in ordering the Retreat of the Continental Troops on the 23<sup>d</sup> March last stands unimpeach'd to this Court, yet no sufficient Evidence hath been offered to prove that Col<sup>o</sup> Livingston hath traduced Genl McDougall's Conduct in that respect, & it appears to this Court that tho' Col<sup>o</sup> Livingston's Regt<sup>t</sup> was at that time unprovided with a sufficiency of ammunition, that it did not proceed from any criminal Neglect of his own. The Court do therefore adjudge & determine that the s<sup>d</sup> Col<sup>o</sup> Livingston is not guilty of the above two Charges. The Court is further of Opinion that the s<sup>d</sup> Col<sup>o</sup> Livingston is not guilty of ordering his Brigade Major not to turn parties out of it unless the Orders were directed to him the Col<sup>o</sup>. But as to the Charge against the s<sup>d</sup> Col<sup>o</sup> Livingston of neglecting to bring down his Regt<sup>t</sup> on 23<sup>d</sup> March last & the delaying the Returns of his Regt<sup>t</sup> & Brigade, by Orders & whims of his own, contrary to the known Rules of the Army, & thereby delaying the Genl Returns of the Army in this Department—The Court is [of] Opinion that the s<sup>d</sup> Col<sup>o</sup> Livingston is thereof guilty. The Court is further of Opinion as to the last Charge for abusive Language to Genl McDougall at his own Quarters on 23<sup>d</sup> Instant unbecoming an Officer and Gentleman in the presence of many Officers of the Army, that tho' Col<sup>o</sup> Livingston appears to this Court to be guilty of great Imprudence & Indiscretion in some parts of his Language & Conduct towards the Genl. with respect to a Return made by the Col<sup>o</sup> to the Genl yet his Conduct & Language was not such as will warrant the appellation of being unbecoming a Gentleman & Officer. The Court do therefore UNANIMOUSLY adjudge & determine, that considering the Nature of the Offence whereof they find Col<sup>o</sup> Henry B. Livingston guilty, and the Consequences thereupon attendant, that Col<sup>o</sup> Henry B. Livingston be reprimanded for his Offences in Gen<sup>l</sup> Orders for this Department and cautioned against the Commission of the like in future.*

The Gen<sup>l</sup> approves the judgment of the Court but nevertheless laments there should ever be a necessity of publicly reproofing any Gentleman, particularly of so respectable Rank as Colonel. The consequences of the smallest Delay in the Execution of any order, are evidently most dangerous, & the least wilful neglect of this Nature too serious to be passed in Silence—equally ruinous and to be exploded is an indirect Compliance and every practical Equivocation.

In the Formation of an Army, rigorous Subordination cannot be too strictly adhered to. Breach of Respect to a Superior is an implicit Countenance to an Offence of a similar and more aggravated Nature with Inferiors & tends directly to the Subversion of Order.

The Gen<sup>l</sup> takes this opportunity to warn all Ranks against similar offences, hopes however this Caution is needless, & flatters himself he shall have no future Occasion to think it otherwise.

The Brand may be had at H<sup>d</sup> Q<sup>rs</sup> & must be carefully returned.

* No orders are noted between the 16th and the 27th. General Putnam was ordered, June 12th, to send forward Generals Parsons, McDougall, and Glover, with all the Continental troops at Peekskill, except one thousand effective men; which number, in conjunction with the militia and convalescents at that post, was deemed equal to the number of the enemy on the east side of the Hudson. The above detachments were ordered to march in three divisions, each to follow one day's march behind the other, and each of the first two divisions to be attended by two pieces of artillery. Platt may have marched with one of the Brigades, and so lost ten days.

BRIGADE ORDERS, 29 JUNE, 1777.

The Command<sup>g</sup> Officers of Reg<sup>ts</sup> & Companies are hereby inform'd that his Excellency Gen<sup>l</sup> Washington has ordered that a wagon and four horses be allowed to every hundred men, Officers included. They will therefore regulate the Baggage accordingly, while they have Leisure, as the Brig<sup>d</sup> will not expose himself to the Gen<sup>ls</sup> Displeasure, by his Brigade moving with more Carriages than they are allowed ; nor risque the necessary Baggage of the Brigade to be lost. The Tents of every Reg<sup>t</sup> will be marked with the Name of the Col<sup>o</sup> to prevent their being lost, or disputes about them. Such of them as are torn or rotten to be now returned into the Q<sup>r</sup> M<sup>r</sup> Gen<sup>ls</sup> Store. Whenever the Brigade is ordered to strike Tents or Decamp, the Tents will be compactly made up without any Poles or any kind of Baggage within them ; and tied with a String in order that they be not chaffed. The Poles also tied & put into a Waggon under the Tents. Every Mess will immediately provide themselves with bark strings sufficient for those purposes. No Kind of Baggage or Lumber shall be put above the Tents, but Beds or Mattrasses. The Arms of the Brigade will be clean'd & inspected agreeable to the printed Orders of the 17th May & messed conformable to it. The Waggon Master will attend at Orderly Hours with the Adjutants.—No Officer or Soldier shall abuse any of the Drivers of the Brigade, if they neglect their Duty they must be taken prisoners, if the service will admit or a Complaint entered to the Waggon Master. On the other Hand the Drivers must attend punctually on their Duty, the great pay they have, as well as the Common Duty they owe their Country, loudly calls on them for a faithfull Discharge of it. If the motives do not excite them, they will be severely punished. The Drums & Fifes of the Brigade will practice every morning & afternoon, with the best Drum & fife Majors of the Brigade. A Return will immediately be made of the Drums & Fifes wanting in each Reg<sup>t</sup>. The Surgeons of the Brigade will supply themselves with the necessary Medicines, Dressing & Instruments for their respective Corps ; and make daily Returns of their sick to the Brig<sup>d</sup> & Surgeon Gen<sup>l</sup> of the Army in this Department. The Brigadier wishes to see long Orders rendered unnecessary, by every Officer in the Brigade doing their Duty & promoting Harmony & Love in it, which are Considerations of vast moment ; in order to our promoting the Service & Interest of our bleeding & distressed Country. Those who are to mingle their Blood with each other in Defence of her Common Liberty against one Common Enemy ; should studiously guard against everything that has the least Tendency to create any uneasiness in the Brigade. Whoever shall thro imprudence or otherwise distract that Harmony, so necessary for the Comfort of the Brigade, will be treated as he deserves.

These Orders are not issued from any Apprehension, that there is a Want of Harmony in y<sup>e</sup> Brigade ; but to preserve it. The Commanding Officers of Regts. will make a Return as soon as possible of the Cloathing due to their Men from the Public & accompany such Return with the Names of the Men, the Company & Reg<sup>t</sup>. they belong to, what they have received & what they want opposite to their Names.

The Court adjudge & order the Prisoners reduced to the Ranks & to receive Fifty Lashes on his bare back.*

The Court considering the Circumstances of the Prisoner, sentence him to receive fifty Lashes upon the naked [back].

The Court adjudge the Prisoner guilty of forging a pass, which together with the Crime of Desertion, the Court sentence him to receive one Hundred Lashes upon his bare back.

John Obrian private ‡ in Col<sup>o</sup> Cortlandt's Reg<sup>t</sup> tried at the same Court, for stealing Liquor & getting drunk, sleeping on his Post, & absenting himself from his Guard. The Court is of opinion that there has been no sufficient Proof of the Prisoner's stealing liquor; but for the other Charges against him, sentence him to receive fifty Lashes on his bare back.

The Gen<sup>l</sup> approves the several Sentences and orders them to be put in Execution to-morrow Morning at the usual Time & Place, ex-

A Board of Gen<sup>l</sup>. Officers to sit to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock at the Widdow Warren's, to examine the Pretensions & settle the Rank of the Field Officers from the State of Connecticut.

Considering the present Urgency, the Gen<sup>l</sup>. directs that the Artificers continue the necessary Business of the Army, even on Sundays unless particularly instructed to the Contrary.

The Gen<sup>l</sup>. is resolved to prevent the small Pox from spreading among the Troops or Militia who are arriving. For this Purpose all Officers & Soldiers who appear to be infected shall be immediately removed to the small pox Hospital, & nowhere else. He expects the Officers will exert themselves for the exact Observance of this Order & he assures them that every infected Person who presumes to go more than a Hundred Yards from the small Pox Hospital without a Certificate from the Surgeon, that he is sufficiently cleans'd, shall be treated [as] a Common Enemy, be the Consequences ever so fatal.

BRIGADE ORDERS, 6 JULY, 1777.

It will give the Brigadier great pleasure to find the men wash themselves early in the morning & late in the afternoon ; but such as shall be found in the Mill pond or Creek from 8 o'clock in the Morning till six in the Evening strip'd will be punished as violators of Orders. The Adjutants will be answerable, that this Order be read to every Comp<sup>y</sup> in their respective Regiments.

A Captain will be appointed every Day to inspect into the State of the Camp & report it to the Brigadier. He will call on him for particular Orders every Day at 8 o'clock in the Morning. ## BRIGADE ORDERS, 18 JULY, 1777.

The Brigade will practise the Manual & Manœuvres ordered by the King of Great Britain in 1764, for his Army till it shall be otherwise ordered by the Commander in Chief. Such Officers as have not practised in Exercise & Manœuvres will be industrious in perfecting themselves: as the Brigadier intends calling on every Commissioned Officer of the Brigade to exercise & manœuvre the respective Regts to which they belong. Those Officers who are practised in those particulars will drill the awkward Sergts to qualify them to drill the Rank & File. The Sergeants, Rank & File of every Regiment will provide themselves with a hard stick of the size & form of a Cartridge & keep them in their pouches to go thro' the firing motions.

} Officers of the Day.

The Picquet kept at the Church in future is to be taken from Lord Sterling's Division, consisting of one field officer & 120 men as at first.

The Court appointed to examine into the Grounds of Uneasiness among the Commissioned Officers of Col<sup>o</sup> [Edward] Wigglesworth's Reg<sup>t</sup> occasioned by the appointment of Major Porter, report that as Major Porter was appointed by authority which was proper and competent for the Purpose, it ought not to be drawn into Question by them.

The Gen<sup>l</sup> approves the Sentence & earnestly recommends it to all Officers of the Army not to let trifling Considerations respecting Prudence [precedence?] & Rank impede or divert their Attention from the great Object for which we are at War, viz. the Defence & Salvation of our Country, remembering that true Honor results not so much from Elevation of Rank & Place as from Sublimity of Soul & great military exploits.

The following Soldiers were tried for the several Crimes annexed to their Names respectively, viz :

The Gen<sup>l</sup> approves the Sentence & orders that said Rose be shot to Death on Friday the first of next August between the Hours of Ten & Eleven in the Morning.

The Gen<sup>l</sup> approves the several Sentences & orders them to be executed to-morrow morning at Guard Mounting on the grand parade.

The Gen<sup>l</sup> is sorry that he is so frequently put to the disagreeable Necessity of ordering Punishments to be inflicted owing to the great Frequency of Crimes, the Perpetration of which renders punishments absolutely necessary for the Reformation of Offenders, & to deter others in order to maintain that Subordination, Order & Regularity which is necessary for the well-being of an Army—earnestly recommends it to all the Soldiers to take Warning by the Sufferings of others: for tho his Eye pities their Sufferings, his justice will not spare their Crimes, & so to behave as to give as little Occasion for the disagreeable Employment of inflicting punishment as possible & to prevent what he imagines to be one principle cause of such irregular Conduct, viz<sup>t</sup>. drinking spirituous Liquors to Excess, he strictly forbids the Soldiers frequenting taverns, Tippling Houses, or Sutler's Shops where spirituous Liquors are sold & their drinking spirituous Liquors to excess.

The Provost Guard is augmented to 1 C., 2 S., 2 S, 2 C, 2 D. F., 50 P.

Considering the Imperfection of Man & his liability to err; The Inexperience & Rashness of Youth that betrays them into many criminal Imprudences & exposes often to be seduced into evil practices by the Example of false pretence & subtle Insinuations of designing Veterans in Iniquity & that in some Cases where it would be perfectly just to inflict punishment, the great End of Government will be answered, the Public Interest Secured by the Exercise of Mercy in the forgiveness of offenders—trusting that all these Reasons concur in the present case to urge & justify the Hand of Clemency in being reached out to save two unhappy young men who are justly condemned for their Crimes & trembling with the anticipation of their Punishment just ready to come upon them—

It is the Gen<sup>ls</sup> good Pleasure that Sam<sup>l</sup>. Fosdick & Thos. Colvin receive a pardon & a Pardon is hereby granted to each of them & it is ordered that they be discharged without receiving Punishments & join their Reg<sup>ts</sup>, relying upon it that the Consideration of this Goodness to them will more Strongly induce them to virtuous & order Behavior than the Smart & Twinges of Punishment. At the same time would caution every one against taking Encouragement from this act of Clemency to presume to transgress.

The Court find the Prisoners guilty & sentence the Sergts to be reduced to the Ranks & each of them to receive 100 Lashes on their naked backs.

The Gen<sup>l</sup> approves the sentence & orders it to be executed to [morrow] morning at Guard Mounting.

Edmund Palmer was arraigned & tried upon a Charge of Plundering, robbing & carrying off Cattle, Goods, &c. from the well-affected Inhabitants & for being a Spy for the Enemy.*

The Court finds him guilty of the whole Charge alledged against him, & sentence him to suffer the Pains of Death.

The Gen<sup>l</sup> approves the Sentence & orders it to be put in Execution on Fryday, the 1st. of next August ensuing between the Hours of 9 & 11 in the Morning—by hanging him up by the Neck till he is dead, dead, dead.

Jeremiah Maybee was bro't before the Court on suspicion of being a Spy.

The Court find him to be an Inhabitant of this State & his Offence of such a Nature, that its proper to refer him to the Convention or civil Authority of this State.

Lt John Waterman & Ensign Abbit [John Abbot] of Colo. Durkee's Reg<sup>t</sup> were bro't to Trial upon an Arrest by order of Col<sup>o</sup> Phillip Cortlandt for behaving in a scandalous & cowardly manner before the Enemy on a scouting Party near the White Plains on the 10th Instant & making a false Alarm in Quarters at the same time.

The Court upon maturely considering the case adjudge Lt. Waterman guilty of behaving in a scandalous and Cowardly Manner before the Enemy; but are of opinion that he did not wilfully occasion a false Alarm in Quarters & thereupon order that s<sup>d</sup> Waterman be cashiered & that his Crime, Name, Place of Abode & Punishment be published in the news paper in & about the Camp and in that State, from whence he came & where he usually resided—but as for the s<sup>d</sup> Charge against s<sup>d</sup> Abbit they are of Opinion that he is not guilty & acquit him with Honor.

The March of the Army whenever it begins will be made with the utmost Dispatch. This renders it indispensably necessary to divest it of as much Baggage as possible.

Each Brigadier is therefore immediately to cause certain Waggon's to be prepared for the Tents of his Brigade, and when Orders are given to march they are to suffer nothing to be put into these Waggon's but the Tents & see that they are not heavy loaded even with them—& the more to facilitate the march of the Army, the Commissaries are to leave no Means untried to procure a Supply of hard Bread to be reserved for the march—& when the Army moves they are to go forward before it & get the Provisions ready to be delivered out the moment the Army halts. The Qr Mr Genl will have ready a proper Number of empty Waggon's to follow each Brigade to take up the sick & lame. The rest of the Baggage is to be left under the Care of a small Guard to follow on after the Army accompanied by the women—None of them are to be suffered to go with the Troops.

* This record well illustrates the difficulty of tracing the persons intended. "Gansaevil" is evidently intended for Gansevoort, and Peter Gansevoort was appointed Colonel of the Third Battalion of New York, 21 November, 1776. Hartstone or Hutson were not found in any New York Company; but Platt Orderly Book gave it as Captain John Houston of Gansevoort's Regiment. In 1775, Houston was a Second Lieutenant in the New York line, and when the force was re-organized at the end of 1776, was recommended for a Captaincy, as an "excellent officer and unprovided for." He received a commission, but the record suddenly becomes silent as to his service. I give in parallel columns the names of the three officers of Houston's regiments, the first column being taken from the State Archives, The Revolution, I, p. 140, and the second from Calendar of Historical Manuscripts, II, 49:—

DIVISION ORDERS, AUGUST 7, 1777.

One hundred and twenty men from Gen<sup>l</sup>. Huntington's Brigade properly officered to parade at Gen<sup>l</sup>. McDougalls Encampment tomorrow morning at six o'clock with one days provision without arms, there to take orders from Col<sup>o</sup>. Durkee. Ensign Cole who has charge of the Intrenching Forts will see them collected every Evening. He will also at the same time return all axes to the Reg<sup>ts</sup> that are borrowed of them.

The Service has been greatly injured by the Delay of making up the Pay Rolls & Abstracts in due Season. Gen<sup>l</sup>. McDougall therefore expressly orders that the Pay Rolls of each Reg<sup>t</sup> for every Month be punctually bro't to the respective Brigadiers the first day of every Month after Pay becomes due, ready to be attested; in Order that they may be put into the Hands of the Pay Master, to enable him to receive the Money for the Regiment, whenever the Military Chest shall be in Cash. Whoever fails to obey this Order, will be put in Arrest.

Regimental orders it is a gen<sup>l</sup>. Complaint among the Inhabi- tence a Complaint two Justly founded that the Troops whare Ever Incamped Burn their fences and Destroy ther Property by Robing their Fields gardens &c a Practice that Every officer in Deed is Spetially Bound to Prevent the Lt Colo therefore orders in the Most Preamtory terms that no Soldier in future Be guilty of any of those Crimes on the Penalty of being Punished with the greatest Severity

Any Soldier found Pulling Down fences Burning Rails Robing of Feilds or gardins of the Inhabitence will be Whipt as many Lashes as the Commanding officer Shall think for he has Determined on a march Never to Call a Court Marshel to try offenders But to Punish them as he Shall think most Convenient to good order and the good of the Service and the man found Standing by a fire made of Rails will be Deamed Equilly Guilty with him that Stole them and will be Punished accordingly the L<sup>t</sup> Colo Expects that these orders will be Red to the Companis and that they will Punctually Comply with the Same which they will Doe if they have any Regard to their own Cost and Reputation
